DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weder et al (#5,656,233) in view of Weder et al (#4,893,757). Weder et al #233 substantially show the claimed subject matter including bagging the decorative grass after the grass is slit/cut using a cutter that is adjustable, using air blowing means, extrusion means, PLC means that monitor and control the rate of sheet material that is fed as well as receives as input the width, thickness and density of the sheet. The PLC also controls the speed or rotational rate of the cutter. Weder et al #233 also show duct means wherein air-blowing means blow the decorative grass into the bagging system. Weder et al #233 show a plurality of magazines (fig 6) as well as a cutter discharge exit, an extruder 12 and foaming injector 25 as claimed. Weder #233 do not specifically show the dividing means into discrete aggregates of decorative grass and multiple ducts as claimed. Weder et al #757 teach the concept of using multiple ducts 426, 428, 448, 450 and multiple blowers 406-412 to transport material into multiple stations. Weder et al #757 show the concept of forming discrete aggregates that may be referred to as Easter grass (col 6 lines 60+) by using different shaped spikes which will create discrete aggregates of material. Weder et al #757 also discloses separating the material by charges that are accumulated and weighed. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide Weder et al #233 with a plurality of duct systems that divide the aggregate material and discrete aggregates as taught by Weder et al #757 to duplicate the operation to expedite the manufacturing process and to form packages of different capacities tailored to the user. The examiner notes that duplication of parts, such as, ducts for a multiplied effect is entirely obvious. See St Regis Paper Co v Bemis Co, Inc, 193 USPQ 8, 1 (7th Cir 1977)

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
